MCC's water slightly leaded but still safe

by Michael Lang

For the past two years, Raritan Hall has had signs posted that instruct teachers and students to drink the water at their own risk. Rumors from students and faculty members claiming that the water is either poisonous or contaminated with lead have plagued the campus, causing fear and worry.

Ann McLane, coordinator of Safety, said that there is nothing to worry about, however. She declared that the water is not poisoned nor contaminated, but it does have a slightly high lead indication.

She said, "After numerous tests, the water in Raritan Hall came out one point above the state cut-off level for the amount of lead permissible. We have been flushing the water, both in Raritan and Edison Halls, which has proven to be successful in the efforts to remove the lead."

McLane assured that the water in both buildings is still being tested, and that there is no cause for alarm. She believes that the issue was blown out of proportion.

Because the college does not have its own reservoir or water facility, MCC's water is pumped from Edison Township's water company. McLane said that she does not know if the source of the lead problem is the pipes at MCC or the Township of Edison's underground city pipes. According to McLane, that is why all necessary precautions are being taken to correct this minor problem.

Hepburn, Social Studies and the Humanities; Dean Marilyn Kenner, Health Technologies; Dean Frank Spano, Engineering Technology and Science; Dean Warren Keleman, Continuing Education; and Paul Hilf, director, MCC Foundation.

Academic Services & Support

Counselors available for job assistance

by Jennifer Slovensky

Counselors in the Department of Counseling and Placement Services are ready to help students adjust to college life and find part-time jobs.

One of the department's counselors, Terri Orosz, helps many students in these types of situations.

"Lots of students come in to see me, and say they are looking for part-time work. I meet with them and discuss exactly how job placement works," explained Orosz.

When students ask Orosz for help finding employment, they register for the job placement program, which gives them access to the department's job books. The books are filled with faxes and letters from companies looking for employees. The books include jobs pertaining to almost every major offered at MCC.

The department also provides resume preparation assistance. This includes compiling and faxing. "A great time saver for students is having our office fax their resumes to their chosen companies. We can also guide them in writing their resumes correctly," said Orosz.

If anyone is interested in finding seasonal employment, they can register to use the services.

"Temporary Christmas positions are now being sent to the office," said Orosz. "It's not too early to register to look for holiday work."

Students who want more information about the job placement program can call Orosz at 906-4188, or stop by Edison Hall 101.

V.P. Bakum discusses MCC issues

"Work on something, and have it accomplished"

by Michael Lang

Dr. John Bakum has been a vice-president at MCC for 12 years, and has worked as a staff member for 28 years.

Bakum is a graduate of Orange County Community College, Newark College of Engineering, and Rutgers the State University of New Jersey. His degree is in electrical engineering, with a doctorate in education. Bakum is presently teaching an Algebra II class on campus as well as visiting other colleges to discuss administrative matters.

When asked what future projects are planned for MCC, Bakum replied, "A Learning Resource Center which will be constructed in the near future will connect the present library with the Johnson Learning Center through glass breezeways and bridges. This new facility will allow students to grow through learning, and the college to meet today's present standards."

One of the most memorable and gratifying events that Bakum has experienced at MCC was the implementation of a dual degree program with Rutgers University. Four years ago, Rutgers University agreed to accept MCC transfer students who have fulfilled the requirements of the fine, practical, or performing academic arts and who have shown outstanding academic performance.

Since this agreement, many other accredited educational institutions have also honored transfer pupils from MCC.

A forthcoming academic program, according to Bakum, will be the addition of Russian as a new foreign language. Russian classes will begin in the spring or fall of the 1995 academic year.

When questioned about security on campus, Dr. Bakum replied, "Compared to other higher level schools, Middlesex County College has a 24 hour police force and eight new yellow emergency phones are being posted on campus for additional security. We have the campus well covered."

In the future, MCC will be receiving over one million dollars worth of state-of-the-art equipment, including computers, robotic machinery, and audio/visual aids. The State of New Jersey will pay 75 percent of the funding; 25 percent will be paid back by the college through leasing programs.

"There is a high possibility of a new parking area behind Raritan and L'Hommedieu Halls. The overflow of over 12,000 students on campus everyday has created the need for more parking for students as well as teachers," said Bakum.

Bakum's motto is "Work on something, and have it accomplished."

Look in next week's issue for part two of this interview.

MCC Chief carries on tradition

by Carol Shymanski

Chief Oberc is sitting at his desk, going about his daily work. A loud crash sounds through the office. Oberc runs outside to see an accident. His day has begun.

Being Chief of Police at MCC brings about certain responsibilities. Oberc is responsible for the college's safety and security programs, the investigation of criminal acts, and the overall supervision of the police department. It is a lot of work, but he is happy doing it.

"I enjoy coming to work every day. I have a ball here," said Oberc. He is the third chief in MCC's Police Department history. He explained that he wants to maintain the department's integrity and carry on traditions from former chiefs.

"There is always the potential for danger on this job. Dangers faced on the outside are also capable of occurring on campus," said Oberc.

In past years, weapons have been confiscated after isolated altercations. "Kids are coming here from high school where weaponry is a problem," he noted.

Oberc has seen many accidents, fights, and criminal acts during his seventeen-year term at the department. He told of one unique incident during the Indian Festival in 1991. On the last day of the festival, forty dagger-carrying members of a religious sect soothed her with his words and reassured her that everything would be alright. "It felt really ment." After graduating from Trenton State College in 1974 with a bachelor's degree in Science and Criminal Justice, Oberc worked for one month as a correctional officer in an adult cor-stormed a tent because they objected to the information that was being displayed inside. This potentially volatile incident was put to an end when Oberc made arrangements with a radio station so that everyone could have the chance to speak his or her mind. His quick thinking brought about a peaceful resolution.

Oberc gets a sense of satisfaction from helping others. In one incident, he helped a worker who had fallen in the College Center. He good when she thanked me and to know that I had a small part in making things better for her," he said.

Before coming to MCC, Oberc worked in a retail store as a security guard where he arrested many people. Seeing those people get off on parole sparked Oberc's desire to become a police officer. He explained, "I was turned off by the less than perfect law system. That's when I knew I wanted to go into law enforcerectional center. In 1977, he came to MCC after applying three times. He started as a patrol officer and was promoted to captain in 1981. In 1989, he was promoted to his current position of chief.

Chief Oberc's promotions came early in his career, whereas for most people, they usually come towards the end. Speaking of his early accomplishments, Oberc says, "I don't consider myself an over-achiever."

"Pulp Fiction" - Violence with a capital "V"

by Anton Massopust

"Are you really thinking about retiring? What would you do?"

"I think I'll walk the earth."

"Walk the earth? What do you mean?"

"You know, like Kane in 'Kung Fu'."

Do real hit men talk this way? Well, in Quentin Terrantino's film "Pulp Fiction," they do. With witty lines like the above, this film looks at the sleazy underbelly of society.

The story is told in four parts. First, the plot involves two assassins going out to recover some of their boss' money. The second part involves John Travolta and Uma Thurman on a date. They go to a 50s night club and participate in a "Twist" contest. This reminds me of a young Travolta in "Saturday Night Fever." The third part is about Bruce Willis, a boxer who is supposed to take a dive but ends up on the run. The fourth part is about why Jules (Samuel L. Jackson) wants to retire.

"Pulp Fiction" is violent with a capital V, but the style, dialogue, and cinematography blew me away. The film is not for the squeamish or faint of heart. The performances are incredible. Jackson has evil in his eyes that will chill you to the bone.

Travolta, who has reinvented himself more times than we can count, delivers his best performance as a man who doesn't know quite where he's going. Bruce Willis is a little weak, but he isn't bad in this film. Uma Thurman is spectacular as the wife of the hit men's boss.

If you want to see an awesome movie with great performances, see this.

Grade = A.

ANTON'S VIEW

Farewell to a legend -- Burt Lancaster

We lost another Hollywood legend recently when Burt Lancaster suffered a fatal heart attack at his home.

Lancaster, the star of countless films and television projects, won an Academy Award for his role as a huckster evangelist in "Elmer Gantry." Lancaster also starred in "From Here to Eternity," "The Birdman of Alcatraz," and played a daredevil in "Trapeze." He played a mobster in the recently released movie "Tough Guys."

He will be surely missed. I remember him in a role he played in "A Field of Dreams," in which Shoeless Joe said to him as he walked off the field, "Hey, Rookie! You did good!"

Yes, he surely did.

Three ways to beat the high cost of college.

1. The Montgomery GI Bill
2. Student loan repayment
3. Part-time income

The Army Reserve Alternate Training Program is a smart way to pay for college.

First, if you qualify, the Montgomery GI Bill can provide you with up to $6,840 for current college expenses or approved vo/tech training.

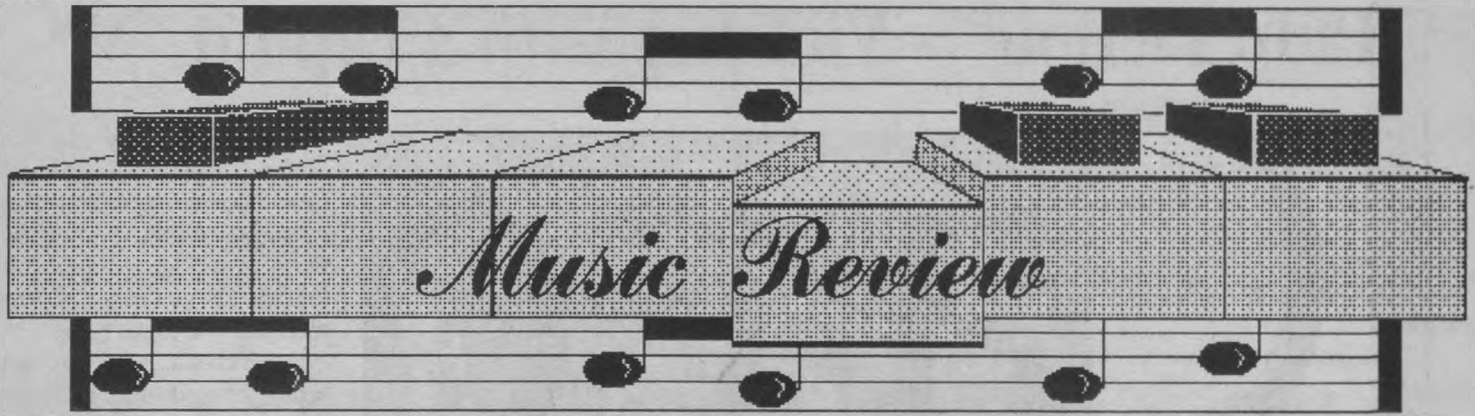

Second, if you have—or obtain—a qualified student loan not in default, you may get it paid off at the rate of 15% per year or $500, whichever is greater, up to a maximum of $10,000. Selected military skills can double that maximum.

Third, you can earn part-time money in college, and here's how it works: One summer you take Basic Training, and the next summer you receive skill training at an Army school. You'll earn over $1,500 for Basic and even more for skill training. Then you'll attend monthly meetings at an Army Reserve unit near your college, usually one weekend a month plus two weeks a year. You'll be paid over $105 a weekend to start. It's worth thinking about. Give us a call:

Live CD's from overseas costly but worth it

By Matthew Kager

Are you disappointed with the fact that you can only obtain the works of your favorite artists at Sam Goody and The Wiz? Are you disappointed that it seems like the only way you can hear your favorite bands perform live is if you attend their concerts?

Many bands release live material overseas. For a long time, these CD's were unavailable to the American public, and bootleg tapes were floating around. However, chances are that the recordings were poor due to the fact that the performances were taped illegally. People would spend big money to hear their favorite bands live, and get ripped off instead.

Finally, there is a solution to this problem. There are certain stores in the Tri-State area that carry overseas albums. The US #1 Flea Market carries a few, but they are overpriced. Revolver Records, located at 45 West 8th Street in New York City, carries these CD's for twenty dollars each. This is cheap compared to US #1's price of thirty dollars.

While twenty dollars for one CD may seem expensive, one has to take into consideration that these CD's are being shipped from overseas, and can not be purchased in America's corporate record stores.

Practically any popular band that has gotten at least some radio airplay has released one of these CD's. Artists include Guns-N-Roses, Nine Inch Nails, U2, Prince, the Black Crowes, Metallica, Morrissey, Jane's Addiction, Ministry, Nirvana, Madonna, The Lemon Heads, Smashing Pumpkins, Led Zeppelin, Kiss, Rage Against the Machine, and Soundgarden. And all of them are live!

Again, these albums are NOT bootlegs. They were recorded directly off the mixing board, which means NO STATIC!!!

Often, countries overseas have material long before it is released in America. For example, Nirvana's MTV Unplugged performance, which is scheduled for release in America on November 1, arrived at Revolver Records (from Italy) this summer.

Cornwell's "The Body Farm" is a murderous, masterful mystery

By Carol Acs

"Who knows what evil lurks in the heart of men..." or women for that matter? That is the ominous message in the riveting and gruesome book The Body Farm, which recently reached number four on the USA Today Best Seller List.

Award-winning crime reporter and author Patricia D. Cornwell has written a trilogy of unusual murder investigations: Post Mortem, Cruel and Unusual, and All That Remains. Her novels revolve around the career of fictional forensic pathologist and FBI consultant Dr. Kay Scarpetta.

I have to confess, I have been unable to stop reading these page-turners, and I enjoy each grisly, sickening detail that Scarpetta's investigative autopsies uncover.

Cornwell's characters and her murderous tales exploit that insane need to understand the diabolical mind that lies in all of us.

In her fourth novel of this series, Cornwell unleashes Scarpetta on the trail of the fascinating and gruesome murder of a little girl in North Carolina. Scarpetta, teamed with FBI colleagues Benton Wesley and Pete Marino, arrives in the peaceful mountains of Asheville to untangle a botched police investigation and a murder which smacks of "serialism".

Is this hideous and perverted crime the evil handiwork of the elusive killer Temple Gault? With increasing trepidation and no time to waste, Scarpetta consults "The Body Farm", a secret FBI research facility in Tennessee that specializes in forensic tricks of the trade.

In this book, Cornwell fleshes out the characters of Scarpetta, Wesley, and Marino, and allows the reader glimpses into the hearts of these dedicated professionals.

Not for the squeamish or the faint of heart, The Body Farm is a chilling and riveting tale. Once again, Cornwell has scored with Dr. Kay Scarpetta, an intelligent and gutsy investigator who pursues truth and justice "from the inside out."

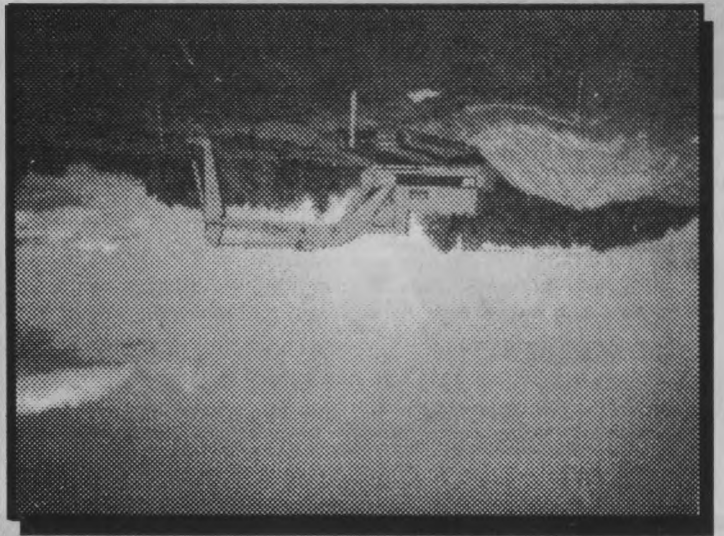

Patricia Cornwell: author of many murder stories as she appears on the cover of her latest novel.

ISSUE 2 OF 2

HOW IT ALL BEGAN

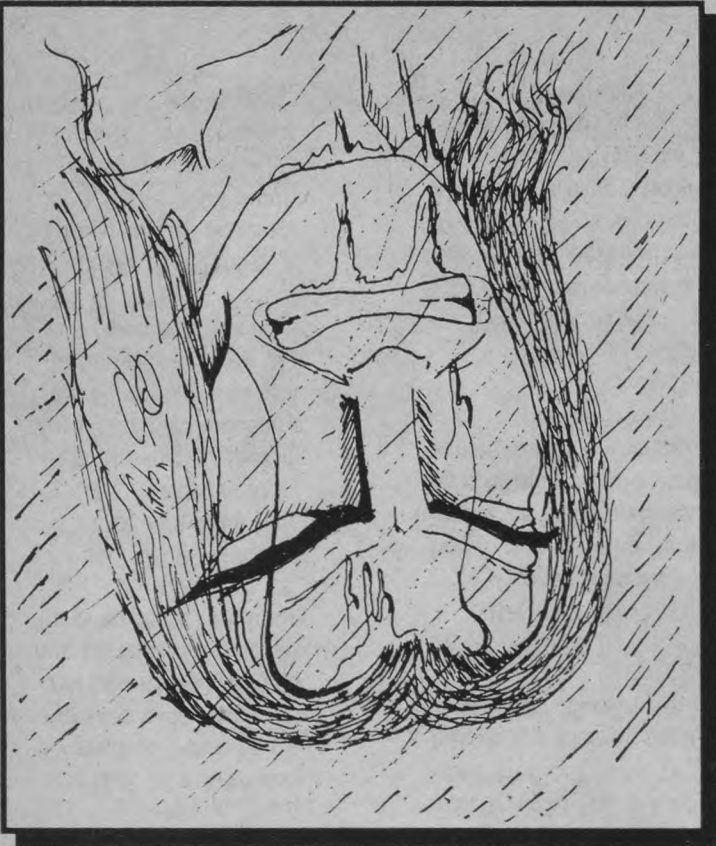

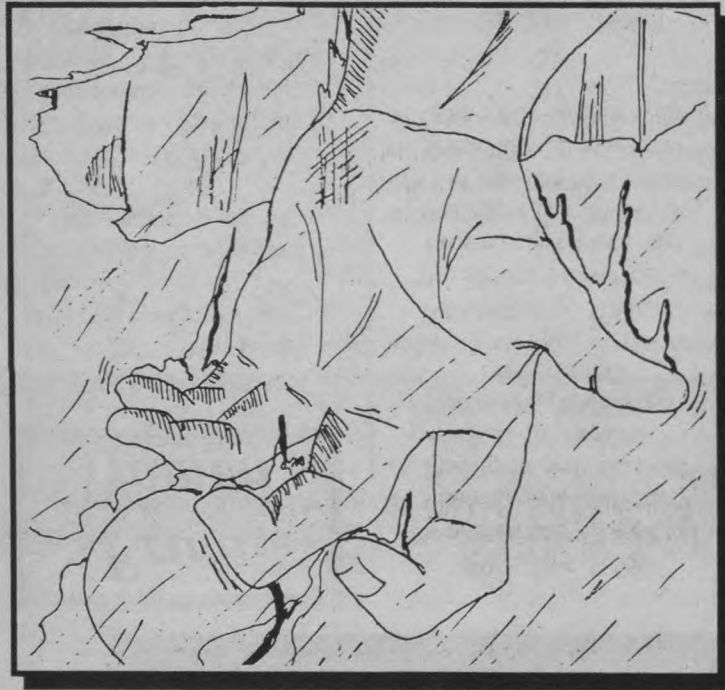

By Dan Perez

On October 31, 1993, the renovation of Mee's baseball field had just begun. The ownership of Calton was working hard to remove all of the old military base equipment and the toxic waste barrels buried under the field. Little did the workers know that they had broken a barrel of toxic waste, spilling it over the corpse of John Sterling, causing his body cells to reproduce, bringing him back to life.

Sterling struggles his way out, and soon realizes that he has risen from his grave to avenge his death as the Mee Phantom!

ATTENTION
Personals which have an * next to them should come up to the Quo Vadis office because the individual has a response waiting for him or her!

By Dan Perez

The MCC Personals is your opportunity to meet people with interests like yours.

Here's the way it works: Any student who would like to place an ad must fill out an application form. Forms can be found in the paper or in the Quo Vadis office (College Center Room 316).

Don't worry - your name, phone number, and address will not appear in the paper. I need that information in case you receive a personal message from another person. What will appear in the ad are your physical features, such as hair, eye color, age, and weight.

Your ad will give you the chance to explain what you are looking for in another person, and will contain a personal file number.

If an ad attracts you, all you have to do is submit information about yourself, along with your phone number, and the file number of the person you wish to meet to the Quo Vadis office. I will pass the information along to the person you wish to meet.

It's that simple, and it's all confidential. So pick up a pen and fill out an application, or write a letter to the ad that attracts you. Messages can be dropped off at the Quo Vadis office, or in the Quo Vadis mailbox, which is located behind the information desk in the College Center.

This a chart to explain what the abbreviations mean

SWF= Single White Female
SBF = Single Black Female
SHF = Single Hispanic Female
SWM= Single White Male
SBM = Single Black Male
SHM = Single Hispanic Male
SGM = Single Gay Male
SAM = Single Asian Male
SIM = Single Indian Male

Sorry for all the personals that weren't put in this issue. they will be in the next. Good Luck!!!

Cut out and drop off at the Quo Vadis office, Rm. 316 Or in the Quo Vadis mailbox, located behind the information desk in the College Center.
